The Frost Farm

Primary Maker

Kate C. Frost

Medium

Oil on canvas

Description

A farmscape depicting a white-painted, two story house on the right, with a three-bay facade, two-third Georgian floorplan consisting of two rooms to the left of a central hallway, green-painted shutters, and two white chimneys on the left gable. A lower two story wing attaches to the main structure on the right. It has a columned porch, green-painted shutters, and a single chimney on its right gable end. Two paneled entrance doors to the house are painted brown. A brick smoke house, shed, and well are situated to the right of the house. An English-style, red-painted barn is situated to the left of the house, and at some distance from it. A corn crib and small shed are located close to it, along with a stack of hay and three stacks of corn stalks. The yard between the house and barn is fenced off with a white-painted picket fence. Trees are depicted in front of and to the left of the house. Four chickens, three cows, a male figure, and a dog appear in the field in front of the farmstead. Fruit trees have been planted along the driveway at the extreme right edge of the painting. A hill rises to the left behind the house and barn.
