Medium

Oil on canvas

Description

with a black floral pattern. A red silk damask drapery fills the upper right corner of the canvas. Through a window to the left of the subject can be seen a pastoral landscape with a stream flanked by fields and trees.
