

Round Gown

Medium

Silk, linen, cotton

Description

A woman's dress of the style known as a "round gown," of simple plain weave olive drab silk. The dress has a front closure bodice consisting of two flaps which overlap and are pinned into place, forming a shallow gently rounded neckline. The back of the bodice is sewn to the back portion of the skirt, while the front of the skirt is sewn to two tapes which fasten around the waist apron-style. The dress sleeves are long and somewhat closefitting. The bodice is lined with off white twilled cotton, while the sleeves are lined in three different fabrics, including a small printed cotton calico.
