

Woman's Reception Gown

Medium

Silk brocade, corded silk, georgette, silk ribbon, silk fringe, silk lace, steel boning, hooks and eyes

Description

A woman's reception dress, constructed as one piece. The bodice has a button front in pale gold and ivory brocade with a pattern of overlapping sea scallops. The gown's high neck has an applied ruffled lace and ivory georgette ruching. A large bow of pale blue and ivory silk is sewn to the bodice front. Three-quarter sleeves, with slight fullness at the shoulder peaks, have a lace panel down the sleeve from shoulder to elbow, lined with sheer georgette. An ivory corded silk band encircles the sleeve end, with a deep ruffled cuff of layered brocade, lace, and pleated georgette. A large bow of pale blue and ivory silk is sewn to the left and right elbows. The gown's bodice is boned with eleven steel strips, encased in plain corded silk. The bodice is lined with tan woven striped silk. The skirt front is of corded ivory silk, wrapping around the waist and fastening at the back with a hook and eye closure. The back of the dress closes over the skirt with buttons down the front. The skirt front includes a draped georgette overlay panel. The dress's deep trained skirt is edged with rows of pleated georgette and ivory silk fringe. A pair of blue and ivory silk ribbon bows are sewn to the left and right hips above the skirt train.
