Salt glazed stoneware

Description

A salt glazed stoneware jug, with a squat, ovoid body tapering to a footless rim. A vertical strap handle is attached to the top of the jug's short neck just below the thick lip rim. Several shallow incised bands run along the shoulder. A freehand foliate spray is painted at the front of the jug in cobalt blue, with additional small bands of blue painted around the strap handle. Several patches of brownish-orange firing imperfections can be seen, most noticeably below the foliate decoration at front.
