Cotton mull, linen

Description

A woman's gown, made of lightweight cotton mull, with a rounded neckline with drawstring fitting, short bell sleeves, high waistline with narrow drawstring casing, and slightly flared skirt with cartridge pleating along the back of the waistband. The gown includes a front closure in a "bib" style, with two inner linen bodice panel flaps closing with pins in center front, and the apron/bib front buttoned at the shoulder fronts with small thread buttons. The gown is embroidered in whitework, with widely spaced floral springs on the skirt and larger floral/foliate groupings on the bodice and down the front of the skirt to the hem.
