Evening Gown

Medium

Silk satin, woven silk and metallic openweave, rhinestones and silvertone metal

Description

A woman's evening dress, consisting of gown, overgown, and belt. The gown is made of oyster white silk satin, with complex bias cut construction, deep V neckline, narrow ribbon shoulder straps, and gored skirt panels assembled as gores to flare out at the hem. The gown slips over the wearer's head. The overgown is constructed of openweave black and silver metallic threads in a gauzy material, also made as a pullon garment, with rounded neckline, bias cut body, open back, simple flat shoulder straps, and two elongated narrow rectangular panels sewn to the shoulders and back waist of the garment and hanging as freefalling back interest. The gown also has a matching belt in black and silver metallic gauze weave with a large double front clasp in the shape of matching geranium leaves in silvertone metal inset with numerous rhinestone/paste stones.
