Moll Pitcher at the Battle of Monmouth

Primary Maker

Unknown Artist

Medium

Oil on canvas

Description

A dynamic battle scene showing a group of soldiers at a cannon right of center, accompanied by a female in a red short gown and green skirt in front of an American flag. A wounded or dead soldier lies on the ground in front of the cannon, and a water bucket lies on the ground near a stream to the left of the female figure who holds a ramrod in her left hand. American officers appear in the distance on the right behind a fence, while the American army chases the British, who are in retreat, in the left distance. A fife player and drummer appear to the left of the primary female figure, and a second female appears to their left, waving a hat high in the air above her head. Other soldiers are grouped around the rocks and steam in the left foreground. The blue sky is filled with smoke from the battle.
