Description

A pencil drawing of a two story academic structure on a stone foundation with a three bay gable end to the street.

A columned porch protects the centered entrance on the street elevation, while a square tower with an ornamental railing sits atop the gable. The side elevation is of four bays. An access hatch and chimney can be seen on the roof. All of the windows are equipped with louvered shutters, eight of which are closed. The building is situated on a narrow street bordered on both sides by picket fencing. A second street is shown to the right of the school. Picket fencing along the street to the left of the structure, and a board fence at the rear of its lot, define a yard area. Trees have been planted in front of and beside the structure, and a female figure attired in a voluminous dress and a cape or shawl is shown walking from right to left in front of the academy. Two gates in the foreground fence open inward onto a path and a driveway.
