

Fiddleback Side Chair

Primary Maker

Hendrick Smock

Medium

Maple, ash, and tulip poplar

Description

The black painted maple frame includes an unusually shaped crest rail above a central vase-shaped splat of tulip poplar that is tenoned into the crest rail and shoe. The shoe has unusual rounded ends. Other features include rear posts with small baluster turnings below elongated column turnings, and sturdy turned front posts with small baluster turnings just below the seat frame. They end in double pad feet. The single front turned stretcher features a bulbous element in the center, and elaborate conical ends. There are two pairs of side stretchers and a single rear stretcher, all of ash. The woven rush seat has been replaced.
