

High Chest

Medium

Cherry, maple, and white pine (the last per wood analysis by Winterthur in 1977)

Description

A high chest in two parts. The upper section includes an applied cornice molding, two narrow drawers above three full-width graduated drawers, and a narrow band of molding applied just above the bottom edge of the section case. The lower section features a band of molding along the front, left and right edges into which the upper case sits, a central shallow drawer flanked by two deep narrow drawers above an arched and serpentine skirt trimmed with applied cockbeading. All drawer openings have a band of double-arch molding applied along the edges. The drawers are fitted with brass teardrop pulls with scalloped and engraved backplates, and scalloped and engraved brass escutcheons. Six trumpet-turned legs end in bun feet. The flat front and side stretchers echo the arch and serpentine silhouette of the skirt, with a plain flat stretcher along the back.
